

Study Questions for the Covenant of Life Opened.

(Part 12.)

540. What are the subjects of the twentieth chapter?

A. _____

B. _____

C. _____

D. _____

541. What might appear concerning the suffering of Christ?

542. What is true concerning this? Why?

543. What is the first absurdity noted which follows upon such an assertion?

544. What question might be raised against this by the assertors?

545. What answer would they likely give?

546. What are the other absurdities which follow upon this assertion?

A. _____

B. _____

C. _____

547. What is noted, from Prosper, of those who commit the efficacy of redemption to their free will?

548. What boil of Pelagianism do the assertors of universal redemption fail to avoid?

549. Why, according to Rutherford, can it not be said that Christ has died to make all mankind saveable?

A. _____

B. _____

C. _____

550. What may be said from the last point?

551. What is not true concerning this point?

552. What might be objected herein?

553. What answers are given?

A. _____

B. _____

C. _____

554. What other objection is considered?

555. What answers does our author give to this?

A. _____

B. _____

C. _____

D. _____

556. What are they really asserting who raise these objections?

557. What objections does Rutherford raise against this scheme?

A. _____

B. _____

C. _____

558. What was previously asserted by our author concerning the promises of the Covenant?

559. What are we to conclude from the fact that God absolutely intends to save all for whom Christ dies?

A. _____

B. _____

560. What points does Rutherford make concerning those who break the Gospel Covenant?

A. _____

B. _____

561. What is the objection raised here?

562. What answer does our author give?

563. What is the next objection raised?

564. What answer is given?

565. What is the third objection raised at this point?

566. What answers are given to this?

A. _____

B. _____

567. What point is made concerning Christ's suffering?

568. What rhetorical question is raised by way of a second point?

569. The Law as the Law commands what?

A. _____

B. _____

C. _____

D. _____

570. How are the reprobate under the Covenant of Works?

571. What is the question raised?

572. What answer is given in chapter twenty-one?

573. What is the second question raised?

574. What answer is given to this?

575. In what way does Christ speak to the reprobate in the Church? Why?

576. What two points are made upon Christ commanding Law obedience to His chosen?

A. _____

B. _____