“How precious it must have seemed as it came to Jacob in that den of a place, where he lay with the hedges for curtains, the heaven’s for his canopy, the earth for his bed, stones for his pillow, and God for his companion. ‘I am with thee. Tomorrow when thou shalt open thine eyes thou wilt look back to the west and say, “I have left my father’s house and my mother, Rebekah, behind me”; and the tears will be in thy eyes; and thou wilt look to the east and say, “I am going to the house of my mother’s kindred, and I know them not, save that I have heard concerning uncle Laban that he is hard and grasping; and I know not how he will receive me.” But is not that a precious thing to start upon a journey with - I am with thee - I, the ever blessed? Though thy mother is not with thee, I am with thee.’”

- Charles Spurgeon
